Inkle Weaving

Instructor(s):

Inkle bands are sturdy, narrow woven strips of fabric produced on a small, portable loom. Historical uses, prior to the advent of elastic, included garters for stockings, chair seats, and clothing decoration. Today, we use inkle bands for dog leashes, belts, guitar straps, shoe laces, and so much more! Students leave this full-day workshop with knowledge of how to warp an inkle loom, weave on it, and a finished woven band. Inkle looms are provided by the instructor for use in class, and can be purchased if the student desires.

Exposed Coptic Stitch Books

Instructor(s):

If you like texture and sewing that is exposed to show your handiwork, you will definitely enjoy creating these two books in this two-day workshop! The Cross-Structure Book has signatures sewn with a soft cover which holds it securely. The Coptic Book also reveals the sewn binding, but with a hard cover. Both books are perfect for use as journals or sketch books because the pages lay flat when opened. Students add their own design to the covers making these structures uniquely their own. All skill levels are welcomed in this fun-filled and informative workshop. All specialty materials are provided ($15 payable to the instructor) and a supply list of easier-to-find items is found at www.cityoftulsa.org/waterworks

Join Patrick Dennis, masonry contractor and architectural stone carver, as he teaches the fine art of working with limestone. Students are introduced to hand tools including drills and wedges; chisels; rasps; and hammers to learn the time-honored techniques of working with stone in many ways. If possible, the techniques of particular interest to each student will be demonstrated and taught. Limestone pieces are provided to each student; a list of suggested hand tools is available, if desired, but tools are available for use during this four-session class.
